You can go to many places by train safely, can't you? I love trains in Japan. But living in any foreign country may be a little difficult because of the language problem. I have made mistakes on the trains through poor communication. Once, I was riding on a train to my home. I used this train many, many times before that. On that day, I was able to find a seat. I knew I was lucky enough, because this train is always full of passengers. I thought I would close my eyes and sleep a little. A man's voice came over the loudspeaker to tell us what the next station was. The man also said something I didn't understand. But I didn't worry about it. While I was sleeping, the train stopped at Minamida. At this station, the train split into two parts. One half went to Higashino, and (3) took me to Nishizawa. It took me hours to get to (4) the right station. It was very inconvenient. Next time, I will be sure to ask a Japanese person, "(5)".
